Trustees Demand Probe of 'Revised' Document

By FRANK LaPIERRE

An application made by the Jefferson Elementary School District for federal money under the Emergency School Aid act (ESA) may have been falsified to qualify the district for some $775,000 in special funds.

No one in the district, or agencies of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in San Francisco will comment officially on the matter, except to acknowledge that it is being looked into.

The Post did learn, however, that San Mateo County District Atty. Keith Sorenson, the district's legal counsel, was asked to investigate the alleged incident.

Sorenson was approached two weeks ago by JESD trustee Beverly Forrester, Dr. Robert Hughley, director of the ESA project within the district, and Herbert Hemington, school superintendent.

After listening to the three school officials, Sorenson and aides Lem Summey and Tom Casey III, decided the issue was an "in-house" matter and should be settled as such, the Post was told.

There did not appear to be any criminal issue at stake and the matter would be better left to the district to take whatever action it deemed appropriate, Sorenson allegedly told district officials.

Hemington, who assumed his job after the application was filed, said he considered the term "falsifying" to be too strong.

Such use would imply a criminal offense had occurred, he said.

He noted that the matter had thus far been talked about only behind locked doors, away from the public spotlight.

And he was "not at liberty to discuss it with (this newspaper)."

Hemington explained, however, that much of the project outline had been implemented, and it was "quite normal when making projections" to fall short of goals set forth in applications.

Piecing the incident together, it was learned the special ESA grant was applied for in 1973, after a consultant was hired to handle necessary paperwork.

The consultant was Dr. Theodore Parsons of Berkeley who wrote the project outline.

Besides the JESD, three local parochial schools were included in the grant for some $200,000 — Our Lady of Perpetual Help, Holy Angels and Our Lady of Mercy.

In late 1973, trustees agreed to shift some children to different schools, and to shift the names of the schools also, as an economy measure because of a declining student enrollment.

There was no intent to shift children as a means of desegregation for better racial balance in the district, JESD trustee Mrs. Dorothy Adams explained.

A majority of the board has continued to of the board has continued to oppose busing of children for the sake of busing, Mrs. Adams recently pointed out.

On Oct. 30, 1973 the JESD Board met and agreed to pursue possible funding under the ESA act and also agreed to hire Parsons to map plans for getting the money.

Two weeks later — on Nov. 13, 1973 — the board acted to shift Fernando Rivera school to Thomas Edison school and to close Jefferson school.

Four JESD representatives, Mrs. Forrester, Dr. Vin Stratton, Dr. William Fowler and Donald Brooks attended a meeting with HEW to negotiate the grant.

On June 19, 1974 the application was approved and the money granted.

What bothers some members of the board, however, is that the initial application for ESA money was rejected, and later accepted after someone "revised" it.

This "revised" application was found recently, but is still not available for public scrutiny.

According to the application, the district would be expected to redraw attendance boundaries for schools to achieve pupil population to qualify it for the grant.

Then, under two phases, about 13 of the district's 19 schools would be shifted for desegregation purposes, with remaining schools being drawn into the plan under Phase Two.

Asked about this, trustees Forrester and Adams said they had never before heard of Phase One, Two or redrawing the district areas.

If they had, they would not vote for it, both agreed.

As it turned out, the shifting of students between some schools for economy purposes did result in a better racial balance, it was explained.

Within HEW is the Office of Civil Rights which reviews grants.

During a routine survey of the JESD grant, it was learned the district was apparently not keeping its part of the agreement, an OCR official explained.

The OCR official asked that her identity not be made known "because there's nothing final (on this matter) and if I told you (about the JESD grant) now it would be all on me -- and I'd be fired."

The most anyone at OCR would comment on the JESD matter was; "it's being summarized."

Regardless of the OCR findings, the money will not have to be given back to the government, some officials venture.

Others are not so certain.

"What if they do want it

A $1.5 Million Windfall

City Seeks Housing Priorities

With time running out for city governments to apply for funds under the Housing and Community Development Act, Daly City Monday tabled the matter until a citizens advisory committee agrees on a list of priorities.

These priorities will determine which organizations, both within the official city family and outside non-profit agencies, will be given first consideration for the estimated $1.5 million available under Title One money over the next three years.

Some 14 seperate agencies in early December asked the council to fund their respective projects with the money.

The total amount of money asked for by these applicants far exceeds monies available, and the city staff was instructed to recommend to the council a list of priorities.

Heading the list of priorities was a proposal for construction of a multi-purpose center, including relocation of the John Daly Library in the east-of-Market Street area.

But a number of persons in the audience demanded the windfall be used for rehabilitation of homes and construction of low and middle income dwellings in older areas of the city.

Conceding the $1.5 million would not be sufficient to perform what is necessary to eliminate all blight in the city, Original Daly City Protective Association co-chairperson Conrad Pavellas, said this income could be used as "seed money" to get the project underway.

Mrs. Rhina Gonzales, vice president, and Juan Escobar, president, of the newly formed Daly City Community Children Services, asked for funds for child care centers around the city.

They explained that working mothers presently have no place to leave their children while they earn a living.

In all, some 16 persons asked the city for consideration of their projects — some overlapping.

The Citizens Advisory Committee is to determine priorities and take the list back to the city council.

City Manager David Rowe informed the council that his staff had compiled a list of priorities after conducting a "fairly objective" survey of needs.

However, Councilman Paul Hupf expressed dissatisfaction with the city list after learning that the persons compiling the list were all city employees.

Hupf said he wants a committee made up of citizens to compile the list and have it resubmitted to the council before the Feb. 15 deadline — the date the city must apply to the Association of Bay Area Governments for its share of the federal monies.

The councilman said it was "impossible to make an intelligent determination on the information presented (at the Monday meeting)."

The ODCPA presented the council a six page housing proposal which included "a complete solution to the housing problem; an adequate supply of low income housing; rehabilitation financed through grants, low interest loans and ordinary loans on a sliding scale.

Pavellas said the cost of borrowing money is too high, and some homeowners are letting their property "slide downhill."

When these persons see their neighbors painting and fixing up their homes it will provide an incentive to follow suit, Pavellas said.

Another Delay for DC Sign Law Adoption

It looked like the proposed, and much-revised Daly City sign ordinance, would breeze through at Monday's council meeting.

But someone failed to reckon with the wrath of the elected officials whose duty it is to make judgement on such matters.

The first sign that the new law was heading for a bumpy ride, was when the section concerning "political" signs was mentioned.

Under the proposed law, a candidate for office would not only have to restrict himself (or herself) to erecting signs not exceeding 20 square feet, but would have to put up a $250 bond for each permit issued.

And only one permit per 2000 residents of the city would be issued.

The council listened intently as Councilman William Schumacher observed that the sign law would have a near-devastating effect on merchants along Mission Street, Geneva and Junipero Serra Boulevard.

And it agreed with outdoor sign representative Albert Reed that some points contained in the proposed law concerning billboards need further clarification.

But when it came to pages seven, eight and nine of the law — those pages dealing with political signs — questions directed at city attorney Albert Polonsky flew hot and heavy.

For one thing, the most popular signs used by candidates in a race is the 4x8 foot (32 square foot) plywood sign, Councilman Victor Kyriakis said, noting however that Schumacher did wage a successful campaign with his 2x8 foot signs.

And the $250 per permit might prevent some residents from becoming candidates, another councilman noted.

Furthermore, restriction of such signs might be an

Council Rejects Gas Price Posting

"My first reaction is 'sure, they should tell everybody'," Daly City Mayor McRobert Stewart said.

"I don't feel this is in the best interest of our city," councilman Victor Kyriakis commented.

"The Greater Daly City Chamber of Commerce opposes this . . . it violates free enterprise," chamber president Al Vial noted.

These and other barbed comments were reactions from councilmen, civic and business leaders attending Monday's public hearing on whether gasoline dealers should, or should not, post price signs along roadways.

The argument raised was that no other business in the city is required to post such prices outside stores, so why should the dealers?

The council unanimously agreed.

They dismissed the matter.

Don Bevilaqua represented the city's numerous gasoline dealers at the meeting.

He argued that other small merchants can seek lower prices for their merchandise elsewhere if their suppliers raise prices.

But service station dealers are "locked into" buying from major dealers, regardless of how high the price of gasoline goes.

He said oil companies have three prices: rack prices (to independents)

Fire Damage Increases In Daly City

Although the total number of fires was substantially down in Daly City last year, the number of persons injured, and the estimated monetary loss rose dramatically.

In 1973 there were 641 fires reported in the city of some 70,000 inhabitants.

This figure dropped to 551 in 1974, according to records.

But the monetary loss due to these fires jumped from $371,196 in 1973 to some $655,197 last year, reports indicate.

Firemen injured on the job catapulted from six in 1973 to 37 last year, while injuries suffered by citizens rose from 13 in 1973 to 22 in 1974.

There was one death by fire reported both in 1973 and 1974.

False alarms, which continue to plague fire departments throughout the nation, accounted for 1,307 calls in 1974 — a 34.77 per cent increase over the previous year.

In all, there was 3,759 alarms answered by the department in 1974.

A breakdown reveals there were 201 building fires; 79 car fires; 203 fires in rubbish, grass or brush, and; 68 "other" outdoor fires.

BART Surtax, Parking Fee Plan Draws Angry Reaction

Proposals that the Bay Area Rapid Transit District (BART) slap a special surtax on riders using the Daly City station are ruffling more than one political feather.

At a BART district engineering committee meeting early last week it was suggested a surtax be imposed on persons using San Mateo County's only rapid transit station — a station that both Daly City and the county never wanted in their backyard.

Analysis

It also was suggested that a parking fee be levied on all persons using the Daly City station parking lot.

The parking fee suggestion was shelved because BART felt that difficulties would be encountered from not only Daly City — which put up some $350,000 for the construction of a new multi-level garage — but also from the California Department of Transportation (CALTRANS).

Daly City Mayor McRobert Stewart said he opposed both the tax and parking fee because it was "discriminatory to the people who use BART here."

"These people (BART) should learn how to get along with their neighbors," Stewart said. "They built this system to take cars off the road. If they keep this up people will continue to use their cars instead of the trains."

Stewart said BART "talks of San Mateo County getting something for nothing (the station) and yet they accept federal grants to operate.

"Perhaps the people in Vermont should complain about their tax money going to a train system in California," Stewart argued.

San Mateo County opted out of BART some 15 years ago in a 3-2 vote of the Board of Supervisors.

The counties that pay a special tax toward BART are Contra Costa, Alameda and San Francisco.

County officials point out that BART was never welcomed with open arms into San Mateo County.

It moved into Daly City after properties located north of John Daly Drive, were condemned.

Among powers the Legislature gave BART was the right to condemn lands continguous to the rail line for expansion.

The land in the end-of-track area prevented BART from locating their station elsewhere. Consequently, Daly City's relatively level Los Banos Knowles Avenue (former name of John Daly Drive) was chosen despite opposition from Daly City.

One of the leaders of the fight against this station was then-mayor Frank Pacelli.

Pacelli later become a director of the San Francisco Airport Access Commission, a commission that has been placed on a shelve in recent months.

The commission arrived at a plan for extending the BART line from Daly City south to the airport in 1973.

Pacelli said he was bewildered by BART's constant harranguing of persons who use BART Daly City station.

The surtax proposed should be an added 10 or 25 cents, acting BART manager Larry Dahms said.

But Livermore director Robert S. Allen suggested a stiff $1 surtax, making the cost of a ride from Daly City to downtown San Francisco $1.35.

Allen feels all the seats are being taken by non-taxpaying North County riders at the expense of taxpaying San Franciscans who must stand up on the trains.

"It would be interesting to find out what sort of survey BART conducted to reach this conclusion," Stewart said.

"They have apparently failed to take into consideration the number of San Francisco riders from the surrounding area who use the Daly City station," he said.

Riders surveyed by The Post at the station said they would probably go back to riding Greyhound or use cars to get to work, if fares are hiked more than 10 cents.

James Young, of Daly City used to drive to San Francisco's Montgomery Street area where he works in a publishing house.

"Now I walk from my apartment, to the station and ride BART to work. It is good transportation, the price is fair, and it stops my polluting the air," he said, adding "I thought that was BART's objective — to get motorists off the highways."

Aid to Unemployed Increases

By RICK SULLIVAN
(Second of a series)

The jobless rate in San Mateo County may be increasing, but so are efforts to aid the unemployed, both financially and in their search for work.

In fact, efforts could lead to employment for many of the county's 16,000 jobless.

Besides state aid allocated through the Employment and Development Department, the federal government is stepping up its efforts to keep money flowing into the sagging economy, and various non-profit, self-help agencies are organizing to help the unemployed find jobs.

Since 1937 unemployment insurance benefits have been available to most persons expelled from their jobs. But in this time of rising unemployment, the federal government has taken steps to increase the length of time benefits will be given and include previously excluded members of the working force among those entitled to benefits.

Related Story on Page 6C

Before recent federal legislation, agricultural workers, domestic workers, state and municipal workers and some employes of non-profit organizations were not entitled to unemployment benefits.

Now the federal government has appropriated money to the states, to provide these workers with unemployment aid.

Mrs. Betty Rogers, unemployment insurance supervisor at the EDD office in San Mateo, said benefits for these persons were available beginning Jan. 6.

Additionally, current legislation has extended from 26 weeks to 52 weeks the period of time the jobless may draw benefits.

And yet another shot in the arm for the unemployed is on the way.

The House and Senate Dec. 19 approved legislation appropriating $1 billion for jobs for the unemployed in 1975. President Ford signed the bill Jan. 1.

It is estimated that the measure will provide about 100,000 jobs nationwide at an average annual salary of $7,500.

Under the bill, $875 million will be distributed to states and communities to provide

Gellert Donates $1 Million to Mary's Help

The community phase of the Mary's Help Hospital expansion fund drive was kicked off this week with a $1 million donation from the Carl Gellert Foundation.

The grant was made by a unanimous vote for the Carl Gellert Foundation Board of Directors, according to Fred Bahrt, chairman of the board.

Accepting the grant was Sister Florence Urbine, president of the hospital's board of directors during brief ceremonies Jan. 15.

In notifying Sister Florence of the grant, Bahrt commended the Daughters of Charity, which staff Mary's Help, for their services to the community over the past 60 years.

Mary's Help Hospital recently unveiled an ambitious plan for expanding the hospital facilities, which will cost an estimated (in 1975 dollars) $17 million.

Since late October, an enthusiastic group of Daly City residents has been planning the drive aimed at raising needed funds, Charles Turner, city campaign chairman said.

Turner said the Daly City fund drive is the first of several to be held in those communities surrounding Mary's Help Hospital, including Colma, Daly City, San Bruno, South San Francisco and Pacifica.

Working with Turner is a coordinating committee composed of Edward King, vice-president and manager of the Westlake County Club; Peter J. Markovich, manager, Greater D.C. Chamber of Commerce; Francis P. Pacelli, former D.C. mayor and a local businessman; James Sargen, assistant general manager of Serramonte Center; Frank Spadarella, a Daly City restaurant owner, and; Nanda Stewart, wife of Daly City Mayor McRobert Stewart.

These seven persons have enlisted the aid of others in support of the fund drive.

Turner said the committee hopes to raise $5 million over the next five years from individual and corporate gifts and foundation grants for the project.

The remaining debt will be financed through long term loans.

In commenting on the Gellert grant, Turner said:

"This has set the pace for the community to respond to the need for enlarged facilities at Mary's Help Hospital."

back," Mrs. Forrester asks. "Where do we get it?" It has already committed."

The JESD had hoped to again apply for this special funding when the grant runs out in July 1975.

But in the face of the current upheaval, the board will likely decide against it.

"There have been some great projects undertaken in the district with this money," Mrs. Forrester said

She cited the district's math and reading programs and counseling services as examples.

The possibility of having forced busing attached to any future grants from the government under this program has turned some trustees and school officials sour on the idea.

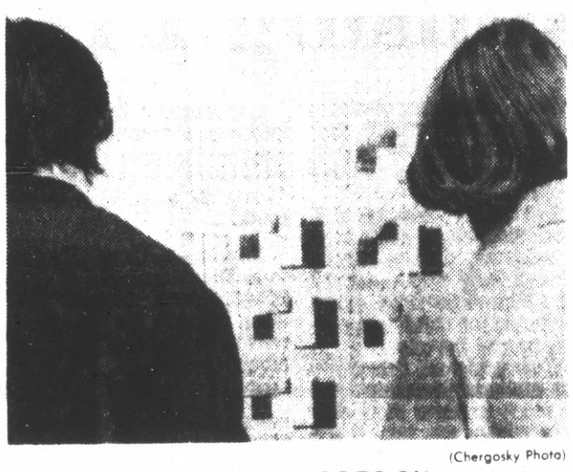
public service jobs for the umemployed in such areas as health, education, recreation and sanitation. The measure specifies that $125 million will be distributed through the Economic Development Administration to stimulate public works projects in depressed areas.

Assistant County Manager Earl Goodwin said the county received a telegram recently advising that the county's unemployment allocation, under the new bill, would be received by Jan. 3.



(Chergosky Photo)

THE SEARCH GOES ON

Jobless youths check the bulletin board at State Employment and Development Department.

He said the telegram stressed rapid implementation of the federal unemployment plan. The U.S. government set a Jan. 10 deadline for the county to employ one-third of the unemployed labor force and a Feb. 10 deadline for employing all those seeking work, but unable to find it.

Goodwin said there are indications that those out of work the longest will get the first jobs. He also said it was likely that a person must be jobless at least 30 days before qualifying for public service employment.

"The program will come as a rapid shot in the arm because of the kind of timetable presented by the feds," said Goodwin.

For those unemployed who will not be put to work immediately under the new federal plan, unemployment insurance benefits are available.

Chances are good that a person laid off can qualify for immediate unemployment benefits. If a person quits or is fired, that person may qualify also, although circumstances surrounding the termination would have to be examined by the Employment and Development Department.

Mrs. Rogers advised that all those leaving their jobs should file a claim.

She said once it is determined that a person is covered by unemployment benefits, there are several requirements to be met before benefits will be paid:

•The claimant must have earned at least $750 within a year. The claimant's actual earnings within that period of time will determine how much money that person will receive weekly. Benefits range from a minimum of $25 to a maximum of $90. Under new legislation, a claimant may receive benefits for up to 52 weeks.

•The claimant must be unemployed or employed less than full time. Depending on how much they earn, those employed less than full time may qualify for benefits.

•The claimant must be able to work, be available for work and be conducting an active search for work. Because it is believed that day students generally are not available for work at any time, they usually are not entitled to benefits. Night students, depending upon their individual circumstances, may qualify.

•The claimant must register with his or her union and meet all union requirements that pertain to or may affect his or her being dispatched to a job. This includes meeting all union dispatching calls and registration requirements.

According to Mrs. Rogers, once a person files a claim a notice of computation will be sent to that person showing the total covered wages paid him in his base period, the employers with whom he worked in that period and his weekly benefit amount.

At the time of the first filing, the claimant is given a special time and day to return to the field office. After that, the claimant usually reports to the office every other week to pick up his unemployment insurance check.

During the third week of the claim, eligibility benefits rights interview is conducted. At this interview, the claimant may ask questions regarding his rights and responsibilities or about the amount of his award.

Disputes arising out of the amount of benefits awarded are settled by a referee.

Similarly, if a claimant is denied benefits, he may file an appeal at the local office within 10 days of determination. If his appeal is refused, the claimant has the right to appear before the statewide appeals board, comprised of five members appointed by the governors. If his appeal is denied there, the claimant has recourse through the courts.

Mrs. Rogers said about three-fourths of the claimants who go through tyhe initial determination process are awarded benefits.

Those collecting benefits, Mrs. Rogers added, are not required to accept any job offered through the EDD. Jobs must conform to a claimant's skills and experience.

Although the EDD offices post new job orders daily, most of the job requests are for clerical positions and in the skilled trades.

To fill the gap left by the lack of job orders for professionals, the EDD provides office space and telephone privileges to a "self-help" group specializing in aiding unemployed professionals of many diverse fields find jobs.

Experience Unlimited exists to serve its members on a voluntary basis. It is not tax-supported.

Organized as a result of the widespread cutbacks in the aerospace industry in the late 1960s, the San Mateo chapter is one of several in the state which works to aid all unemployed professionals and executives without charge. The only requirement is for members to donate four hopurs a month assisting in the resource room at the San Mateo EDD office.

In exchange for his time, the unmemployed worker is assisted in preparation of a resume, which is sent out to various employers in the Bay Area. The member also mayuse the office telephone and equipment and has access to weekly group workshops and monthly speaker meetings, designed to assist him find a job.

tank wagon prices (which dealers pay) and street prices (the price dealers sells merchandise for).

The octane rating and prices are plainly marked on pumps, Bevilaqua said.

Bevilaqua, who posts prices along the street in front of his service station, said from the consumers' standpoint "there is nothing wrong with price posting."

But when a motorist observes one station posting one price, and two blocks away another station posts a lower price, it breeds distrust of the station owner, Bevilaqua pointed out.

"All we're asking for is to let us keep our dignity, the same as other small businessmen in the city," Bevilaqua said.

The government's continued imposition of phase IV controls hurts only the dealers, he said.

Bevilaqua said major oil companies "seem to be playing games."

He said "ARCO is a good example. Other companies had to raise their prices to come up to meet ARCO's prices."

Stewart commented, after hearing Bevilaqua's presentation, "Perhaps oil companies should be posting prices — not the dealers."

infringement on freedom of speech, another said.

Councilman Tony Giammona thought the section requiring a person to come up with the bond money before posting his signs "is pretty stupid."

Outdoor, charitable and political sign sections need more discussion, the council felt, and tabled the issue until its Feb. 24 meeting.

It was hoped by that time — two years after the sign ordinance revision was first instigated — that differences would be ironed out.

Among the Crippled Youngsters

'Just a Drop of Love' for DC Girl

By JOHN HORGAN

Just before 10 a.m. on a midweek winter morning, the fifth grade class at Garnet Robertson School in Daly City is at recess. One student is not. Deborah Baldocchi, 10, has already walked two blocks away to a nearby school for severely handicapped children.

There, Debbie moves among the crippled youngsters who are part of the program at the San Mateo County Development Center-North at what was once the Midway Village School. She embraces them, cuddles them, helps them as these little victims of the whims of fate try gamely to relate to a world which traditionally shuns them.

"I love these children," Debbie says as she prepares to minister to the needs of two of the seven-year-olds in the program, Pam and Roberta. Pam is the smaller of the two and cannot walk.

"I help them exercise," Debbie continues. "I play with them. I feed them. When I get older, I want to teach them." According to the program's supervisor and head teacher, Gary Hirsch, 29, Debbie's interest in and devotion to the children is a revelation to the staff. Says Hirsch, "Debbie is a real rarity. We've had a few other children from her school come down to help but she is the only one who has stayed with it consistently. Many of the others just lost interest. With Debbie, it is just the opposite."

Hirsch says there is a certain stigma attached to children who are so seriously handicapped and, perhaps, malformed as well. Some are also mentally retarded. Says Hirsch, "I've seen people with master's degrees in this field who can't handle this situation very well."

Sometimes, Debbie offers, children at her own school cannot tolerate her labor of love. "When I come back from the center," she says, "some of them won't even touch me." She asks merely that people, including her classmates, try to place themselves in the position of the handicapped youngsters.

As Hirsch puts it, "Debbie has a rapport with the children here. She seems to want to work with these children more than any others."

According to Debbie's mother, Mrs. Lynn Sieber, her daughter became interested in the center and its work after the Bayshore School District board of trustees brought up the idea of renting the vacant Midway Village School to the county. The program at the center is run by the county, although some of its operating funds are provided by the state.

Hirsch and his staff tend about 50 disabled youngsters each day at the center, which is located in the northern foothills of San Bruno Mountain near a PG&E power station and among a cluster of decaying low-income apartments. The county has another center for handicapped children in San Mateo.

He emphasizes, however, that the North County facility "is not a hospital." Children with potentially dangerous afflictions cannot be cared for there.

For Hirsch, individuals like Debbie, who works for free, are a sweet breath of fresh air. She has begun to study the plight of the disabled child at her local library and she writes about her experiences at her own school.

In one of her recent literary works, Debbie describes some of her helpless charges thus:

"Sophia is a little girl down there. (She) dances to music although she can't walk.

"Jenny is a little girl down at Development Center and can't talk although one day she said 'Mama.'

"Pam is a little girl that is stiff and now reaches up sometimes.

"Patty is a little girl with loose muscles (who) grabs for Gini's bracelet."

According to Debbie's way of thinking, all those children want is "just a drop of love."

Mountain Park Plan Approved

With a predominate representation of labor present, the San Mateo County Parks and Recreation Commission Jan. 7 approved the recommended master plan for a 1,250 acre park on San Bruno Mountain.

Speaker after speaker urged approval of the plan, contending that efforts to expand park and open space onthe mountain to the detriment of a planned community development by Visitacion Associates would cost badly needed construction jobs.

The commission's action came only one day after the Board of Supervisors directed County Manager M. D. Tarshes to determine if there is any possibility of further state and federal funding for acquisition of additional park and open space land on the mountain.

Those favoring more extensive park and open space preservation on the mountain, even acquisition of the entire mountain, boycotted Tuesday's meeting.

The vote on adoption of the master plan was 3 to 2, with Commissioners Joseph Higgins and Polly Sandkulla opposed.

Mrs. Sandkulla said that the purpose of a mountain park is not to "give or take jobs, but to give the county the best regional park system it can afford."

A postponement wouldn't affect development, she contended.

The commission's split recommendation now goes to the Board of Supervisors which undoubtedly will face a heated debate on the matter.

Commissioner Robert V. Spillers, who moved for adoption of the master plan, said he did so on the concept that the park will be "for all of the people of San Mateo County, not for a few" who would like to preserve the entire mountain.

Robert L. Follett, general manager of Visitacion Associates, which hopes to develop a residential community on the mountain, said that the commission's action doesn't preclude the county negotiating for additional park and open space in the area.

He stated that there is an additional 600 acres which his firm is offering the county because it is not developable.

Consolidation of Courts Sought

The San Mateo County Board of Supervisors will try again this year to effect consolidation of the county's three Municipal Court districts.

That matter is among 38 programs and projects which the board designated Thursday as "A" priority for this year.

County Manager M. D. Tarshes was directed by the board to submit a report by Feb. 15 concerning the consolidation proposal.

A bill before the State Legislature to effect the court consolidation was withdrawn by Assemblyman Louis Papan last year because of opposition of the North County Council of Cities.

Heading the list of priorities is the decentralized health care demonstration project in the south county area. County Director of Health and Welfare Dr. George Pickett told the board that it will be "tight," but that the one-year project should get underway by April 1.

County Planning Director Donald A. Woolfe reported that it will be April or May before the environmental impact report is completed for the proposed community development on San Bruno Mountain.

Supervisor John M. Ward asked if the board approves the EIR would it be locked in" on the concept of a 1,250-acre park on the mountain.

The County Parks and Recreation Commission approved the 1,250-acre park concept Wednesday by a 3 to 2 vote. The action came a day after the board directed Tarshes to seek out any state and federal funds which might be available for the purchase of additional park and open space land on the mountain.

At the request of Supervisor William H. Royer, it was decided that both the planning and parks and recreation departments submit an updated report on the statusof the San Bruno Mountain planning.

Freshman Supervisor Edward J. Bacciocco Jr. informed the board that following this year's county budget review he may come up with a proposal for a new system of budget studies, with emphasis on county programs rather than departmental requests.

William Hinchcliff, the county's civil defense and disaster office administrator, informed the board that the proposed "911" emergency response telephone system plan will be submitted for board approval Jan. 28.

He said that the $10 million program will be reviewed and, hopefully, adopted by city representatives at a meeting today.

Tarshes reported to the board that he intends to submit a proposed new procedure for the allocation of federal revenue sharing funds by Feb. 1.

The board directed Tarshes to expand the county's public information program this year.

'Pygmy Forest' Display Opens at Serramonte

California's unique Pygmy Forest Ecological Staircase will be presented in a photo exhibit at Serramonte, through Jan. 19.

The Pygmy Forest has been preserved through the efforts of a young Mendocino botanist John Olmsted. In 1968, with others, he founded the California Institute of Man in Nature for the purpose of preserving it.

John Olmsted will be at Serramonte today at noon and will show a slide presentation of the Mendocino staircase formation and discuss his vision of a 3,000 mile national linear park to bind together natural areas across America. He has proposed creation of a 400 mile nature trail reaching across California from the Mendocino coast to Lake Tahoe as an environmental commemoration of the American Bicentennial.

Growing on a section of the Mendocino coast is a forest of dwarf trees on terraces cut by the sea. Five level terraces climb the coastal scarp in one hundred foot steps from the ocean's edge. Each succeeding terrace is 100,000 years older than the one below it, and each one displays distinctly different plant communities in an ordered sequence.

The photo exhibit is a joint effort of the Serra High School Wilderness School and Serramonte Center.

DC Friends Plan Travel Program

The land "Down Under" will appear on screen through slides shown by F. Lincoln Walter for The Friends of the Daly City Library and their guests in the Coral Room of the Westlake Library, Jan. 23, at 7:30 p.m.

The program will be given as a community service, and the public is invited to attend, according to Mrs. Michael Daw, program chairwoman.

Walter is an insurance executive with Marine Office-Appleton and Cox, San Francisco, and past president of the Inland Marine Forum. He is a graduate of New York University with a degree in engineering.

The slides were taken and edited by Walter on a trip through Tahiti, New Zealand, Australia and Fiji. He was accompanied on the trip by his wife, Ethel, a director and past president of The Friends. Walter's interest in these lands in the Southern hemisphere was cultivated during World War II when he was stationed in New Guinea, where he became acquainted with many Australians who also were there.

The Walters have been residents of Daly City for the past 14 years. Both have been active members of The Friends.

Mrs. John Connolly will preside over a short business meeting which will precede the program.

Following the pictorial journey, refreshments will be served by the hospitality committee, chaired by Mrs. Klaus Tschorsnig.

Rape Victim Now Has Somewhere to Turn

Starting today, a woman who is raped in San Mateo County will have somewhere to turn for support.

San Mateo Women Against Rape today is initiating a 24-hour telephone service for victims of sexual assault. Responding to calls to the "349-RAPE" number will be specially trained advocates who will be prepared to give the victim as much support as she desires. If she is reporting the case to the police, SMWAR will send an advocate to accompany her to the hospital, to the police station during interrogation and even to court — if she requests it.

"The advocate on call will talk with anyone about a sexual assault, provide rape crisis intervention, give information and referrals and generally assist the victim to regain control over her life. A caller need not give a name," Kathy Elkins, a social worker and spokesperson for the group, explained.

The group defines rape as "an act of hostility committed by a man against a woman with sex as the weapon, rather than an act motivated solely by sex."

"In San Mateo County during 1973 there were 156 reported rapes. Since statisticians believe that as many as nine out of 10 rapes go unreported, it is possible that actually 1560 San Mateo women were victims of this violent crime. Rape is the most frequently commited violent crime, the least reported and the least often punished," Ms. Elkins said.

SMWAR advocates will not urge a woman to prosecute ("This must be her own decision," Ms. Elkins said.), but they do have a lawyer available to them as well as one of the women district attorneys in the county who "is interested and willing to answer our questions."

Members of the group have been in touch with the local hospitals and police departments in order to acquaint themselves with their procedures for handling rape victims. Ms. Elkins says they were received cordially and with interest in most cases and they don't anticipate problems working with the authorites.

The San Mateo group started with six women from varied backgrounds in July, 1974, and now includes about 15 members. In the original group were two women from the local chapter of the National Organization for Women and two from the community who met at a Berkeley meeting for the Bay Area Women Against Rape. Several of the members themselves have been raped. After six months of footwork and research funded largely by donations and fund-raisers, SMWAR now is prepared to intervene actively on behalf of the victims of rape.

The group also will make speakers availble to the community to provide information and lead discussions, and in the future they plan to sponsor "growth groups" in which rape victims will have the opportunity to discuss their feelings among themselves.

Ms. Elkins said SMWAR also is interested in preventive measures against rape "including changing society," and among mong the most likely efforts in this direction will be self-defense classes they would like to make widely available to women.

She believes that women who can defend themselves are much stronger and self-confident.

"What women need is strength in themselves. The rapist chooses the victim that is least likely to fight back."

For those who haven't had self-defense training, "the scream is still the best weapon against rape. If you act passively, there's absolutely no reason for him not to continue with his plans."

As for the charge that women "ask for it" by their behavior, Ms. Elkins believes that "almost anything a woman does can be interpreted by someone as 'asking for it.' That's basically just a myth used as a means of controlling women. We don't believe women cause men to rape . . . Agression is very acceptable in our society, especially agression against women."

Persons interested in further information or wishing to make a donation are invited to write SMWAR at P.O. Box 6299, San Mateo, 94403. — Michelle Carter

Golden Anniversary Honored

A 50th anniversary party was hosted by the daughter and son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. John Lindstrom of San Francisco Dec. 28.

A dinner-dance honoring the San Francisco couple was held at the Sons of Italy Ballroom on Mission St. in San Francisco.

Arrangements for the celebration attended by 70 guests and relatives were made by the Lindstrom's daughter, Diana Hansen of Daly City.

The gown, worn by the guest of honor, was of white and gold brocade, made by her youngest granddaughter, Lonna Coleman.

Besides Diana, the Lindstroms have a son, Leonard of Eugene, Ore. They have four grandchildren and a great-grandchild, all of whom attended the party.

John Lindstrom is a retired carpenter. He and his wife were married Christmas Day, 1924.

SF State Artists' Series Schedules Free Concerts

The Artists' Series at San Francisco State University resumes programming special free concerts of notable musical ensembles with a recital Feb. 9, at 3 p.m. in the McKenna Theater featuring the Canadian group, the Cassenti Players, a mixed instrumental unit of international repute.

George Zukerman, a bassoon virtuoso, originated the Cassenti Players in Vancouver 20 years ago. They always feature wind instruments — and in particular, the lesser heard wind instruments such as bassoon.

Zukerman is believed to be the only solo-bassoonist currently playing the international concert circuit. He has elevated the instrument from the back ranks of the symphony orchestra to a place of honor as a soloist. Zukerman has unearthed extensive repertoire from the 18th and 19th centuries and also commissioned extensive contemporary works for the bassoon.

The San Francisco State program, with the Players featuring bassoon, flute, oboe, cello and keyboard, will include works by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, George Philip Telemann, Antonin Reicha, Ernst Wilhelm Wolf, and the American composer Vittorio Rieti.

This ensemble derives its name, Cassenti, from two Mozartian instrumental forms, "cassations" and "Divertimenti," both of which were frequently wind instrument works; many of them are in the ever-growing repertoire of the Cassenti Players.

The next Artists' Series is scheduled March 9, when the Danzi Wind Quartet from Holland will be heard at San Francisco State.

Laszlo Varga, Professor of Music, directs this series for the university.

Sponsored by the Student Activities Office, Miller's free talk is set for Feb. 7, at noon in Room 154 of the Humanities Building located on 19th Avenue near Holloway.

Editor Miller will be on his fourth tour of the nation's colleges providing humorous enlightenment to campus populations. Each series has proved to be highly successful.

NELL NORTON

Good morning, good cooks.

Being always on the lookout for new recipes, especially new ways to prepare and serve vegetables, I was delighted when I received this next recipe to try. Since my family and friends accept dinner invitations knowing full well that I may be testing a recipe on them, they come prepared to taste and tell. I'm happy to report that they tasted this dish and told me it was great, so I offer it to you good cooks. My thanks to Gayle Blucher for sharing it with us.

GAYLE'S ZUCCHINI BAKE

2 pounds zucchini, cooked and mashed
½ pound grated Cheddar cheese
¼ cup onions, chopped and saute'd in butter
2 slices buttered toast, cut in cubes
2 eggs, slightly beaten

Cook and mash the two pounds zucchini. Saute the fourth cup chopped onions in butter and add to the mashed zucchini along with the eight ounces grated cheese, two slices buttered toast cut in cubes and the two beaten eggs. Salt and pepper to taste. Turn into buttered casserole and bake in 325-degree oven for 45 minutes. Serves 6 generously.

What happened to all those cookies, plain and fancy that we baked at Christmas? It seems they should have lasted a long time didn't it? Well, here we are in the middle of January and that's long enough for all the cookies to be gone, but not forgotten. So it's time to get out the mixing bowl and the cookie sheets and whip up a large batch of cookies for your cookie monsters. And this recipe really does make up a large batch, eight to nine dozen. These are a soft spicy cookie, filled with raisins and nuts and they keep well.

RAISIN DROPS

2 cups raisins
2 cup water
1 cup shortening
2 teaspoons salt
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
¼ teaspoon each, nutmeg and allspice
2 cups sugar
3 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup chopped nuts

Combine the two cups raisins with the one cup water, boil five minutes. There should be ½ cup liquid left. Cool. Blend the one cup shortening with the two teaspoons salt, one and one-half teaspoons cinnamon and fourth teaspoon each nutmeg and allspice, gradually add the two cups sugar, creaming thoroughly. Add the three well-beaten eggs, one teaspoon vanilla and beat until fluffy. Blend in (4) one-half cup flour and then the raisins and liquid. Mix one teaspoon each baking powder and soda with the remaining three and one-half cups flour, then blend into batter. Stir in the one cup chopped nuts.

Chill dough until stiff. Drop by rounded teaspoonfuls on lightly greased cookie sheets and bake in 400-degree oven for 10 to 12 minutes. Bakes eight to nine dozen cookies.

Seniors Center Opens in SSF

South San Francisco's senior citizen program entered a new phase as over 300 residents participated in the opening of new quarters at 230 Grand Ave., Wednesday.

The drop-in center is open Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, and affords seniors the opportunity to attend classes, hold discussions, play shuffleboard, shoot pool, play cards or just socialize.

It also serves as a center for numerous senior citizen services.

On Tuesdays and Thursdays, South San Francisco's Senior Citizens Club meets from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. This 14-year-old club charges 25 cents a month for dues and provides a host of organized activities for its 180 members. These range from birthday parties, to trips to the Napa Valley to Las Vegas and Reno.

The Senior Citizen Club previously met at the Magnolia Center on Grand Avenue and Magnolia, until it was closed a year ago. The new quarters include a kitchen, lounging chairs and other furniture.

"We have 3,300 senior citizens — those over 60," Nan Thornton, supervisors of special services for the South San Francisco Recreation Division sion said. "Many older people live by themselves. There is no place in South San Francisco for them to meet other people, except in bars."

Cutting the ribbon during opening ceremonies Wednesday was Peter Martin, 98, John Dilles, 89, and Miss South San Francisco, Stephanie Celentano, attended.

Also taking part in the ceremonies was youthful Mayor Terry Mirri — who later tried to dance with every senior woman present, as two senior citizen bands played old, but lively tunes. Assisting the mayor was his deputy, Councilman Dick Battaglia.

"The purpose of this center is to provide you with the opportunity to become involved in life-enriching programs." Rod Corbett, center coordinator told the group.

"These programs are planned for the purpose of stimulating you into new areas of interest, or helping you regain skills and hobbies laid aside during your earlier years," he continued.

The Wisdom of Children

"Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings hast Thou ordained strength."

Old Testament.

Recently some Daly City children were given a list of words and asked to define at least two of them.

A nine-year-old, who signed her name as Nancy, chose beautiful and love as her words. "Beautiful," she wrote, "doesn't have to be pretty. Beautiful can be a nice old lady or a little rose. Beautiful can be a sunset or even a nice person on a cold day. Just like that song says 'everything is beautiful in its own way.' That means that whoever you are you're beautiful."

Of love she wrote, "Love is nice like a hug or a kiss. If you love somebody you sometimes don't let it out, but when you do it comes out beautiful like 'I love you'."

Such wisdom is found throughout the responses of the children. It demonstrates that they are fully aware of the caliber of life that swirls around them and are filled with a desire to improve it. A child who didn't sign the list, unfortunately, wrote "We ought to get more peace on earth, because peace is when the world is starry-eyed and comfortable."

The perception of Daly City's children as revealed in the exercise that motivated Nancy and the other children recalls the words of psychologist Nicholas Anthony Duva who produced a book of children's wisdom entitled "Something Real: Voices of City Children." He wrote that today's children do not escape the terrors of our times. "Drugs and poverty and immobility are all about them (the children). But a world such as this does not breed despair in everyone. To some, especially to children, it brings skill, and power, and a firm and dedicated pursuit of warmth and peace."

Duva writes that today's children are learning to withstand extraordinary stress. ". . . they are made of tougher stuff; tougher, more resilient, more flexible material than most of us (adults). And it shows through."

As if to illustrate his point, Duva compiles the words of 24 children from a self-contained sixth grade class within a school district in a lower Jersey City area that is stricken with typical city ills — "from crumbling tenements, to crumbling dreams."

A student, named Betsy, who was interviewed by Duva when she was 11 years old wrote, "What is happening in people's minds?

They go clikity-clack,
Like binds
But no one is thinking of someone
And others are thinking of themselves."

There is a note of despair in Betsy's words, yet it is accompanied by a note of empathy.

"There are riots outside,
They never stop till night,
They shoot, they mug.
You feel sad inside
But they feel happy."

She also said, "White is my color, and I am proud of it. If I was black I would still be proud.

"Some white people, they hate black. And some black, well they hate white. But I like them both. And I am only one — Spanish white."

Betsy is one of 24 children, whose wisdom is recorded in Nicholas Anthony Duva's significant book. Their wisdom, like that of the Daly City children, shows the minds of today's kids to be as Duva wrote. "They are sometimes joyous, sometimes sad; sometimes angry, and often very, very quiet.

Gregorio's New Bill On Smoking

State Senator Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, introduced legislation Jan. 7 that would let school districts set up student smoking areas on high school campuses.

The Senate Bill 171 is identical to the measure Gregorio had introduced previously which was vetoed by Gov. Ronald Reagan last July.

Former Gov. Reagan had urged school administrators to enforce a "no smoking" rule on school property.

Sen. Gregorio emphasized Tuesday, however, that his bill also would require local school boards to take all practical steps to discourage smoking.

"Since minors have the opportunity to buy and smoke cigarettes legally, it is doubtful that a flat no-smoking ban on campuses is preventing those who are inclined to smoke from developing the smoking habit," Gregorio said.

"In many schools, regardless of the regulations, students smoke in the restrooms. The effect of the existing law is to penalize non-smokers by producing restrooms so filled with smoke that only smokers can use them."

Present state law bans student smoking on all school campuses.

Gregorio's first smoking bill was killed by Reagan, a reformed smoker himself who said he had to "wrestle with my conscience" before vetoing the measure.

Reagan quit smoking years ago, acquiring his famous taste for jelly beans when he began eating them to break the cigarette habit.

Gregorio had previously pointed out that his bill merely gave school boards the option on the local level to handle smoking problems which exist in certain areas of the state, and did not prevent boards from banning smoking at schools if they wished.

Forster Appointed Planner

Appointment of Lee Forster to the Pacifica Planning Commission was announced Jan. 7 by Mayor Aubrey Lumley.

The appointment settles a controversy which had been raging since Planning Commission Chairman George Edsell disclosed that he had moved to San Mateo to be closer to his daughter's school.

Five of his fellow commissioners had written the City Council urging that Edsell be reappointed. They stressed his background, knowledge of planning matters and his intense involvement with Pacifica over the years.

Edsell has long been a leading real estate man in Pacifica and plans to continue to keep his office there. There is no residency requirement in Pacifica for employes or commissioners — only for councilmen. However, no out-of-town resident has ever been appointed to a city commission.

A petition opposing Edsell's reappointment, because of his non-residency, was received last week.

Forster had been a member of the Planning Commission for seven years, resigning in January, 1973. He has been a meter reader for North Coast County Water District four years. He was previously an employe of the Pacifica Tribune.

A long-time Pacifica resident, he resides at 1278 Rosita Road with his wife and two sons.

Six other appointments, and five reappointments were announced by Lumley:

Mario M. (Mike) Torrigino, 455 Carmel Ave. — previously a member of the Youth Advisory Commission — to the Animal Advisory Commission.

Joan Calhoun, 548 Dolphin Drive; Carl T. Drye, 1252 Crespi Drive; Lisa M. Hackley, 944 Park Pacifica Ave., and Tracy North, 1443 Adobe Drive, to the Youth Advisory Commission.

These appointments bring the YAC to full membership.

Dema Savage, 1367 Crespi Drive, official city historian.

Elna T. Myers, 1063 Park Pacifica Ave., an employe of Pacific Telephone, to the Hillside Review Board.

Ralph Abrahamian, 1120 DeSolo Drive; Warren D. Gabrielli, 120 Del Monte Drive; Sharon Neufeld, 1038 Fassler Ave., and Phil Pruett, 897 Calera Terrace, to the Transportation and Safety Commission

State Camp Policy Told

Campers are being reminded that new procedures for reserving State Park System family and group campsites went into effect Jan. 1.

State Parks Director William Penn Mott, Jr., said the new procedures are designed to give campers throughout California an equal opportunity to make campsite reservations at any of the 150 Ticketron offices located around the state.

One change, designed to make campsites available to a larger number of individuals, restricts to two the number of family campsite reservations that will be sold to a single customer for the same dates at the same park.

The other two changes are that no reservations may be made on Sundays, to eliminate the advantage to campers who live near a Ticketron office that is open on Sunday; and no campsite reservations may be made earlier than 10 a.m., regardless of when the Ticketron office opens.

Skyline Offers Women Studies

Introduction to Women Studies, a Skyline College Continuing Education course, will focus on such timely topics as women's bodies and their sexuality and what to do about job discrimination.

Also discussed in this three unit Thursday evening course from 7-10 p.m. in Building 8, Room 8219 will be socialization of children and women as writers and artists.

Instructor Judy Merin explained, "The aim of this class is to share the experience of being a woman, to explore why and how women are directed in society to fulfill certain roles, and to ask what possibilities exist for personal and social change."

Merin said questions for discussion will include: Why are the roles of women and men being challenged so forcefully today? What does the women's movement offer women? Can we know a women's true nature?

"Law, health care, marriage, child care, racism and sexism are all topics students will explore on the way to developing their own ideas about how they can benefit from and relate to the women's movement," Merin added.

For details on registration procedures, call Skyline College at 355-7000 days, or 355-6580/6022.

No Bids Received On School Sites

No bids have been received for sale of two 10-acre school sites, Noah W. Reese, assistant superintendent, business services, reported to the Laguna Salada School Board, Thursday.

Reese said he had sent announcements of the sale to every real estate office in Pacifica and every boards of realtors in San Mateo County, besides posting announcements on public buildings throughout Pacifica.

For sale are the Edgemar School site, selling for $374,088 and the Fairmont 3 site, ticketed at $472,000. Proceeds of the Fairmont site would go to the state to repay a state loan. However, the Edgemar site, which has been paid for, would represent a clear profit for the district, which would be able to use the money to buy portable classrooms or other school equipment.

Sale was forced by a recently adopted state law designed to get unused school sites back on the tax rolls. Under the law, the district must pay a penalty of 1 per cent of the value of the site to the state, each year. Because the state values the sites at even a higher price than the school district, the state is assessing Laguna Salada $9,016 a year for the sites.

Reese is now forwarding the results of the attempted sale to the state in an appeal for exemption from the penalty. The Edgemar site is located along Route 1, near Waterford Avenue. The Fairmont site is on Imperial and Andover Drives.

In addition, Reese will be looking into possibly better ways of marketing one or both of the sites.

Meanwhile, the trustees asked Reese for further details on a proposal to build a $20,000 bus shed, possibly on a third vacant school site, a 40-acre parcel known as the Pitto Ranch site or Pedro Valley 6.

Sewage Facility Funds From Feds Expected

Federal and state agencies have given preliminary approval to the City of Pacifica for a $5.73 million secondary sewage treatment plant, Norman Rubel, director of Public Works, said last week.

Only, Rubel fears, the money available might not be enough to cover the cost of the plant.

The city had applied for funds for secondary treatment in April of 1973. At first, federal and state agencies were giving funds only for primary plants, but the agencies had to re-evaluate their policies when Pacifica was faced with a cease and desist order from the Water Quality Control Commission, forcing it to go into secondary treatment.

Meanwhile, according to Rubel, the application was complicated by another application for a grant to remedy the back-up of overflows, which state officials wished to evaluate.

The newest approval does not include the grant to repair the back-up system. It is still being evaluated.

The original application split the costs so that the federal Environmental Protection Agency would be paying $3.15 million; the state, $1.43 million and the city, $1.15 million. The city will use funds from a bond issue.

Rubel's office is now preparing plans and specifications for the plant, and to update the cost estimates.

The recently completed showplace sewer treatment plant has primary treatment facilities only.

County GOP Licks Wounds, Vows New Fight

By JOHN CURRY

With the national party image shattered by Watergate, a thinned roster of legislators and a 2-1 voter registration deficit to work with after the November elections, the Republicans of San Mateo County are getting the slings ready to play David to the Democrats' Goliath in 1976.

Despite little being heard from the GOP since Nov. 5, when only re-elected Assemblyman Dixon Arnett of Redwood City had much to cheer about, this Republican winter of discontent has been programmed into what is seen as a restoration of the two-party system in this county by the time the next elections roll around.

The hopes, plans and aspirations poured from the county Republican Central Committee meeting Jan. 6 at the courthouse in Redwood City.

Newly elected Central Committee Chairman Russ Collier of Menlo Park announced a list of new committees and warned that these will be working committees.

To show it means business as an ongoing organization, the Central Committee for the first time has kept its office at 19 S. B St., San Mateo, open, and its first full-time professional executive director, Miss Carolyn Judd of Belmont, on the job beyond a general election and on a permanent basis.

Collier, 51, a self-employed property manager in Palo Alto and long-time active party worker, took the traditional shot at the Democrats, whom he said "haven't had a new idea since the Great Society and virtually all of the programs of that era have proven to be ineffective."

But he also outlined a tentative group of committees which are to do most of the work for the Central Committee, including brand-new panels for youth, labor and minorities.

These new committees are designed "to broaden our base of participation," Collier said, calling the task of making headway in these heavily Democratic groups "the great responsibility of the Republican Party in the next two years."

The precinct and finance committees will carry on about the same as they have, but the speakers and information committees are going to have some real work to do.

These, Miss Judd explained, will attempt to recruit a "pool" of speakers for schools and civic groups, with their messages coordinated on what the GOP point of view is and its differences from the Democratic line.

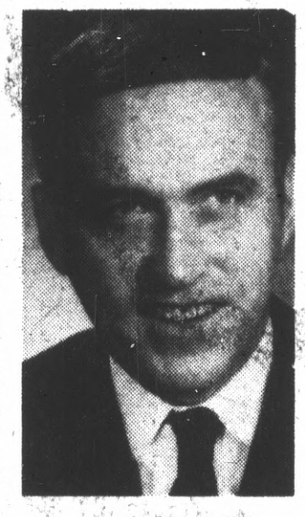
There also would be an active public relations drive with Republican meetings of their own — and this includes, it is hoped, an end to dry, boring Central Committee meetings, Miss Judd said, with speakers and active programs to be planned.

Collier promised that the next Central Committee meeting, Feb. 3 at a place to be announced, will begin promptly at 8 p.m. and end at 9:30 p.m.

Optimism in the local GOP is high and Miss Judd and Collier say they can account for it. "People have been pouring in since the election asking what they can do to help," Miss Judd said. "They're scared at what happened in the election. We, of course, would like to know where they were before the election, but we're glad they're calling now," she went on.

"The trend in America is toward Republicanism," Collier said. "The polls show that more Americans call themselves moderates and conservatives than liberals and radicals and it is clear that Americans are increasingly suspicious of big government," he added.

Collier, who also is state central committee treasurer, said he thought the difference now between



RUSS COLLIER

Republicans and Democrats is that "When there is a problem the Republican looks first to himself and the private sector to solve it, and only then to government, but the Democrat looks first to government."

Part of the "definite opportunities" to come out of the recent elections, as Collier put it, are two vacancies on the 28-member Central Committee, one in the First Supervisorial District in the South San Francisco-San Bruno-Colma-Brisbane area and the other in the Third District of Belmont-San Carlos-Woodside-Portola Valley.

All the new committees are wide open and any volunteers for any post may call the party headquarters in San Mateo.

Collier replaces Robert Wood of headquarters like himself a Fourth District committeeman, as chairman.

Other new officers elected Jan. 6 were: first vice chairman, Hilde Rooth of Burlingame, a long-time centtral committee precinct director; second vice chairman, Gilbert (Gib) Rodli, Jr. of Burlingame, a governmental relations consultant and 19th Assembly District candidate last fall; third vice chairman, Robert Desky, Boise Cascade Corp., assistant general counsel; secretary, Brien Benson of Belmont, director of the Hoover Institution Press at Stanford University; and treasurer, Peter Schrager of Hillsborough, president of Turek Frozen Foods in Burlingame.

Ex-officio central committee members are Congressman Paul N. McCloskey, Jr., R-Menlo Park; Arnett; 1974 state senate candidates James R. Tormey of San Mateo and Max Woods of San Francisco; congressional candidate Brainerd Merdinger of South San Francisco; and Assembly candidates Terence Faulkner of San Francisco, Clarence Jackson of East Palo Alto and Rodli.

Aged Aid Requests Now Due

Applications are being accepted until February by field and central offices of both the State Department of Transportation and the California Office on Aging, for capital grand proposals to improve transportation for the aged and handicapped.

The two agencies are working with the Department of Rehibilitation to take full advantage of a special fund established by the federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration to enable private non-profit organizations to establish or expand transportation services to reach elderly and disabled persons not being adequately served by present public transit.

Grants from the special fund can be made to cover up to 80 per cent of capital costs, with the balance to be provided by the applicant organization.

Proposals are to be evaluated primarily on the basis of need for the service, probability of success and reflected by fiscal and managerial abilities of the applicant, and the potential for coordination with other transportation services.

Planner Claims Racial Discrimination

Board Delays Ruling on Firing of SSF Aide

The South San Francisco Personnel Board Jan. 6 held over a decision on the city manager's firing of Asst. City Planner Surendra Amin.

Chairman Lawrence Coleman said the board would meet after it receives transcripts of the more than three hours of testimony.

By then, he said, board members will have examined reports presented to them.

Amin's reasons for seeking a "review of termination of probationary appointment" was racial discrimination. However, little was said about racial discrimination at the meeting. Amin is a native of India.

Under a city ordinance, the only way an employe can seek a review of his firing while on probationary is by charging political, religious or racial discrimination.

Although he had worked for the city for more than three years, Amin had been a classified (Civil Service) employe for 11 months and 26 days — four days short of the end of his probationary period.

Amin had been hired Nov 22, 1971 as a planning aide under the federally funded Emergency Employment Program. When both City Planner Dan Pass and Asst. City Planner Bill Timmons resigned, Amin suddenly became the sole full-time planning employe. Planning Consultant Neal Martin then served as interim city planner, but only for two afternoons a week. Amin was elevated to unclassified assistant planner. Five months later he joined Civil Service as a probationary assistant city planner.

Amin cited recommendations from the two previous planners, Pass and Martin. Every one of his quarterly job elevations averaged "standard," until David C. Hale was appointed city planner on July 15, 1974, Amin said. He said he did the city planner's work while Hale learned the job. Hale's reports were sometimes so late, "I was unable to make the necessary corrections until the Planning Commission meeting," he told the board.

Amin claimed that such corrections angered Hale.

"If I pointed out the mistakes, I was told that I was not cooperating. If I kept quiet, the mistakes would go uncontested."

Amin complained that Hale never sent him to planning seminars, but that he attended them on his own time. He spent $250 to take a planning course, and worked on his lunch hours, after hours and weekends, with no overtime pay, Amin said.

Hale testified that he had met Amin four years ago. As an official of the American Planning Association, he sought work for Amin. He had been so favorably impressed by his background that Amin's employment in South San Francisco "made me feel better about assuming the job here."

However, he concluded that Amin was being "called to perform at a level seemingly beyond his capabilities."

Hale charged Amin was late to work daily, failed to meet deadlines, and unable to communicate ideas to others.

Hale said he had to rewrite Amin's reports. He said Amin was unable to prepare a poster for Planning Commission meetings. His productivity, two out of 64 staff reports, Hale said, was hurting the planning office.

"He would do well in a large office," Hale said, "where he could work at his ability. There were certain categories in which I enjoyed working with Surendra. I wish I could afford the luxury of keeping him here."

John Guay, representing Amin, charged that after receiving favorable evaluation reports during his three years of employment, it is inconceivable that he would suddenly get such a poor report. He asked Hale if he did not have "pre-formed ideas" on the kind of work that an assistant planner, and that Amin in particular, should be doing.

Hale dismissed the recommendations that the previous planning directors gave Amin. A planning consultant, such as Martin, "is not going to make enemies." As for Pass, Hale had telephoned him long-distance before taking his present post. Pass told him that if he got the job, he should "fire everybody and make a fresh start."

Frank Addiego, director of public services, who is Hale's department head, said that he believed Hale's evaluation report of Amin was "a bit rough." He still supported Hale's recommendation to fire Amin, and passed it on to City Manager Ed Alario.

Coleman agreed to Guay's two requests: A written decision and a transcript.

Making the Housing Task Force Work

"It's important that everyone be heard because each area has its own needs. I would like to see many people become interested. This problem of community development and housing is not going to go away."

By BOB PETERSON

Pat Terry is probably much like the average Peninsula housewife.

The San Bruno mother of two grown daughters participates, as time permits, in various civic activities.

But as chairperson of the county's newly created Housing and Community Development Act Citizens Task Force, Mrs. Terry now has an atypical job.

While husband Bill, chief engineer at Children's Hospital in San Francisco, this weekend engaged in the extermination of pesky ants outside the 551 Acacia Ave. residence, Mrs. Terry sat inside and discussed the significance of her recently appointed role.

Mrs. Terry heads a 15-member group (created through the cooperative efforts of the Economic Opportunity Commission (EOC) and Environmental Quality Coordinating Council (EQCC) of the county) charged with the task of compiling public input on how county residents think the County Board of Supervisors should allocate federal funds.

The county is scheduled to receive $8 million during the next three years through the federal Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

But before that money is allocated, the county must provide for citizen participation in the development of the application for the funding.

"We've had two orientation meetings as a start in absorbing all the necessary information," said Mrs. Terry, pointing at a stack of correspondence."

There is a March 1 deadline for completing the application. It must contain a three-year summary plan showing community development needs and objectives and a strategy to meet those needs.

The application also must provide a housing assistance plan which assesses the needs and provides for housing assistance for low and moderate income families.

A program to eliminate or prevent slums, blight, and deterioration, and to provide community facilities and improvements as appropriate also are required. Priority must be given to activities benefiting low and moderate income families.

"I hope there will not be anything politically oriented, or related," said Mrs. Terry about the public hearings. "I want strictly citizens saying there is this or that need. Maybe they can cite their own dwelling, or point out a parcel of land that would be useable for something."

The application must also indicate compliance with civil rights laws and environmental impacts, as well as adequate citizen participation.

The Half Moon Bay hearing was held for the South Coastside from Devil's Slide to Pescadero. Thursday night a second meeting was held at San Bruno City Hall for input from all of the central county unincorporated areas and the cities of Brisbane, Burlingame, Millbrae, San Bruno and South San Francisco.

Tonight, a third meeting will be held in the Redwood City Fair Oaks Community Center, and on Jan. 16 the final scheduled public hearing will be held at the Pacifica City Council chambers.

Mrs. Terry said Jan. 22 and 23 have been set aside as dates for any additional meetings that may be necessary.

"Having worked for the County Housing Authority I know about limitations," said Mrs. Terry in anticipation of what some of the citizen input might be.

"It's important that everyone be heard because each area has its own needs. I would like to see many people become interested. This (problem of community development and housing) is not going to go away," said Mrs. Terry.

"Rather than ignoring it, I'd like to be a participant in guiding and helping to make it work. I would like to see the board recognize the efforts of this group and the response of the people who will be supplying input," said Mrs. Terry.

She said that although initially she may feel a bit inadequate for the task, she wants to be able to look back and know that she made an effort to contribute her time and talents.

"I'm not a do-gooder," she quickly qualified.

SSF Projects Outlined

South San Francisco's capital improvement projects for the current fiscal year will total $4,389,300.

City Mgr. Ed Alario said last week that a six-year program will provide the "Industrial City" with $58,518,140 worth of improvements by the time it is completed.

South San Francisco, although industry-rich, will be straining its resources to accomplish the program, it was stressed, so several projects are in abbreviated form, or being delayed.

Alario declared at one point that having industry was actually a mixed financial blessing.

Several of the projects presented as part of this year's program already have been started. Alario explained that this year's (fiscal 1974-75) list of capital improvement projects ordinarily would have been taken care of in August, but had been delayed by a combination of the need for a number of new city officials to organize their departments, computer delays, and other urgent needs.

A major presentation was a $200,000 traffic realignment and signal change project on Airport Boulevard. To be revised, according to City Engineer Bob Yee, are the boulevard's intersections with Grand, Baden and San Mateo avenues. The project will include construction of a median strip, left-turn and U-turn storage lanes, and an increase in the number of traffic light phases.

Numerous problems which would be raised by the project were outlined by Traffic Officer Kenneth Metcalf. He expressed fear that increased speeding, and complicated truck movements may result. Alario said he would have "staff work it all out."

Torso Found on Coast Beach

A torso of a young person was recovered on a beach near Montara Monday. It is believed to be that of an eight-year-old Oakland boy who drowned along with his father Dec. 24, officials said.

Pablo Tapete and his son, Paulo, were knocked off a rock by a heavy wave at the bottom of Devil's Slide while fishing. The father's body was recovered that day.

Sheriff John R. McDonald said that personel friends of his discovered the torso late Sunday, and called him at his home. High tide prevented a search Sunday night. The torso was recovered shortly before 7 a.m. Monday.

An attempt to identify it will be made by the coroner's office.

Coast Collision Injures Two

Three persons were injured at 6:40 p.m. Saturday when a car turning into a driveway off Half Moon Bay Road collided with another auto, the highway patrol reports.

Highway Patrolman B.J. Warwick said that Roger K. Guiles, 28, of 1818 El Camino Real, Redwood City, was turning from the eastbound lane into a drive about 250 feet west of Pilarcitos Creek Road when it collided with a westbound car driven by David B. Hill, 22, of 1265 East Ave., Montara.

Guiles and witnesses to the mishap told the patrolman that the lights of the Hill vehicle were not on.

Father Burned

The father of three young children suffered second degree burns and smoke inhalation as he tried to battle a fire that threatened his Daly City home Sunday.

Injured in the blaze was Gregory Broussard of 192 Frankfort St.

He was taken to Mary's Help Hospital for treatment of second degree burns of the chest.

Broussard was reported in good condition today.

The victim's wife and three children — Gregory, 13, James, 14, and Rosalind, 10 — fled the early morning fire that struck their home about 1:15 a.m.

Cause of the fire is still under investigation.

Battalion Chief John Roy said it apparently started in the kitchen area.

Smoke awoke Mrs. Broussard shortly after the family retired for the night. She discovered the kitchen area in flames and alerted the family.

Baccicocco, Ward Sworn In As New Supervisors

Ending seven long months of waiting since being elected to office in the June primary election, John M. Ward and Edward J. Bacciocco Jr. took the oath of office Jan. 7 as the newest members of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

The first official act of the 1975 edition of the board was to elect James V. Fitzgerald, beginning his 15th year as a supervisor, chairman. William H. Royer was elected vice-chairman.

Ward defeated incumbent Robert St. Clair in winning election to the Second District post on the board, and Bacciocco won the Third District seat over incumbent Gerald F. Day.

As the freshmen supervisors took their official seats after recieving the oath of office from Dist. Atty. Keith C. Sorenson, Supervisor Jean Fassler, outgoing chairwoman of the board, commented:

"When you hear my outgoing speech this morning, you'll wonder why you are here."

After introducing members of his family, Ward stated to the overflow of spectators present for the occasion:

"After seven months of anticipation, I hope you appreciate my excitement today.

"The two new members come with ideas and enthusiasm which will be tempered by the three experienced members. It's a good balance."

Bacciocco, whose family also was present, quoted from a Christmas card sent him by a friend who wished him the "courage to meet the days ahead."

"Sometimes there is a conflict with the silent majority," Bacciocco stated. "I hope I have the courage to meet the public interest."

In her review of the year as board chairwoman, Mrs. Fassler commented that, "I am frankly amazed and admiring of the degree of commitment that was forthcoming from members of the county government team. . . to get through what was a difficult, ever-more complex and super-demanding year."

"TRUTHFULLY," she stated, "It has been a year of many frustrations, primarily because of the cynicism about politics, increased demands of our time to meet the needs of our constituents, constant changes in legislation, office reorganization, the fact that it was a campaign year, and so on."

St. Clair did not attend Tuesday's changing of the board. However, Day commented, "Now that you have been sworn into office, I am sure it won't be long before you will be sworn at, that is usually the case."

To the three remaining board members, Day thanked them "for your patience and understanding that has been extended to this stubborn Irishman."

Bruno Youth Arrested In Drag-Racing Death

A 16-year-old San Bruno boy was charged with vehicular manslaughter Sunday after his auto allegedly collided with another car at a San Bruno intersection killing the driver.

Charles L. Garrison, 64, of 32 14th Ave., San Mateo, died at Peninsula Hospital at 11:05 p.m., an hour and a half after the accident.

The youth, whom police would not identify, was booked at the San Bruno police station and released to the custody of his parents pending action by juvenile department authorities. He was uninjured in the collision.

According to police, witnesses reported that the youth was drag racing on the inside lane northbound on El Camino Real when he lost control of his car and struck from the rear a car being driven by Sharron Bonelli, 17, of San Bruno.

Police said the youth's car bounced off Miss Bonelli's auto and hit Garrison's car broadside as it entered the intersection of San Felipe Avenue and El Camino.

Miss Bonelli was uninjured.

Garrison is survived by his widow, Elsie, and a sister, Mrs. R.E. Metsdorf of Los Altos.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

Cosell's Comments

The more we listen to what Howard Cosell has to say, the more we become convinced of his ignorance. Forget that affected vocabulary. Any adult with a section of brain taking a decent night school English class seriously could accomplish the same effect. We knew winos at old Father Crowley Playground on Harrison Street with extensive vocabularies, and they knew what the words meant.

Howard's latest spewing of absurdity occurred on a recent Merv Griffin show, with Dan Jenkins as a co-guest, talking, naturally, of sports. Jenkins was plugging his novel dealing with golfers. He is also the author of the best selling pro football novel, "Semi-Tough."

What upset us is that this pair of acknowledged sports experts viciously attacked baseball, issuing all of the cliche reasons generally offered by people who don't understand the game, i.e., it's boring, has a mentality still lingering in the 19th century.

We won't attempt to answer those arguments here, because our answers would have to become cliches to answer their cliches, and we won't stoop to that. And besides, it's impossible to argue with ignorance, so why bore you with answers we've already offered baseball detractors in this column, now, over a number of years.

We don't object to people not liking baseball, or openly expressing their opinion of the game. What we do object to is stupid reasons for that dislike based on ignorance of the game. Better one says, "Man, I just don't like the game. I don't like watching it. I don't know why." That is honest, an admittance of ignorance, and excusable, especially when not coming from an "expert."

The basic problem with Cosell and Jenkins is that their favorite sport is pro football, which they think is a very technical and difficult game to understand.

FOOTBALL is a great sport, and we like it, too, (although we lean toward college football as a preference), but it tends to warp one's mind if one takes it seriously, which Cosell and Jenkins have undoubtedly done. To them, it is more than a game, apparently, and no sport is really any more than a game.

We don't know about Jenkins, but we are sure that the subconscious reason why football is Howard's favorite sport is because it is perhaps the easiest to understand.

Cosell and Jenkins made themselves further pains in several extremities with their continual references to athletes as "human beings" who should be "exposed" as such. Which was their way of justifying their own particular brand of gossip. Jenkins wants everybody to know that football players say a lot of obscene things and take dope, and, yes, actually do more than kiss women. We haven't read his novel about the pro golf tour, but we imagine it encompasses the same mentality. Cosell actually believes it's important for everybody to know that Mickey Mantle caroused a lot in his playing days, made bad investments, isn't a good public speaker, and may even have a somewhat lower than average I.Q. Jenkins thought it extremely important that all fans should know that Babe Ruth had a rather animalistic character.

Do these two really believe that the average American fan is so naive as to think that athletes are as pure and heroic off the field as they are on? Jenkins kept saying, "I think the public should know that athletes are human, and we've got to show that." Does he think that the rest of us have always thought that athletes are robots? And why have people like Jenkins "got" to show that athletes are human?

The whole sorry speeches by Jenkins and Cosell smacked of pretty cheap commercialism. Just listen to us folks, and we'll tell you all the dirty, secret things about athletes. Right?

Wrong, we say. Athletes should be "exposed" only when what they do off the field affects what they do on the field, thereby cheating the public out of its dollar's worth.

Griffin had the best answer for the two male Rona Barretts. He said, "I really don't care what athletes do off the field. I only care about what they do on the field."

In other words, Howie and Danny, who gives a damn?

Gossiping about the private lives of athletes is no more valid or clean or significant than gossiping about the private lives of movie stars or singers or trumpet players. Or even sports writers and broadcasters.

FOOTNOTE TO COSELL: It would be interesting to see what would happen if Cosell engaged in debate with a REALLY intelligent, well informed, cultured sportscaster like Bill King, who REALLY tells it like it is and has the integrity not to hob-nob with the power structure as Cosell does now that he's become a "name."

Or have you forgotten that the people Cosell used to attack — often with justification — are now his "very good friends." You know, the owners, the commissioners, the money people.

A truly competent play-by-play man like King, who is in addition a fine "analyst" and who really knows virtually ALL sports makes a Cosell so one dimensional as to appear flat.

But then King is a true professional broadcaster, as opposed to a personality, which Cosell is, and which Curt Gowdy, incidentally, is becoming.

Gowdy is no longer the razor sharp, accurate, informative reporter he was before he became a celebrity. In spreading himself too thin he has become shallow, makes basic errors in reporting, and spouts almost as many inanities and pieces of trivia as Cosell.

When broadcasters of any kind become celebrities they lose their effectiveness, because they become more important than the events which they are covering.

FOOTNOTE TO SPORTS BROADCASTERS: Whenever they use their latest favorite catch phrase, "He's some kind of runner," or whatever the case may be, we have the compunction to call the press box and ask them to define their terms . . . What kind of runner? If he's some kind of runner, we should know exactly what kind. They should be more specific, and tell us whether the runner is fast, slow, good, bad . . . a power runner or seat-type runner . . . Right?

MOSES MALONE, the 18 year old (now 19) who stepped right out of high school into a starting position with the ABA Utah Stars, is proving that the fabulous financial deal he received was no mistake. At this moment he ranks 18th in the ABA in scoring with a 17.5 average, is third in field goal percentage with 58.2, and is sixth in rebounds with an average per game of 13.9.

All that despite the fact that he must be given frequent rests because of his relatively frail frame and the banging around he's taking from the old pros. But the kid is hanging tough, growing and within the next couple of years will be ready to reap revenge on the bullies.

Actually, Moses is lucky to be a basketball player. At his age, it's the only pro sport where he doesn't look foolish wearing short pants.

The only thing about Malone which hasn't cost Utah anything is his free throws.

Their only problem has been finding him a baby sitter when he's left alone on the bench.

Anyway, we're glad to see that the ABA has nothing against huge Irish prophets.

Rams Expected a Challenge

Westmoor Rolls Over Jeff

By JERRY LITTRELL
Post Correspondent

Westmoor High's basketball team expected a challenge from Jefferson but rolled to a 14-point win Friday night to stay at the front of the North Peninsula League pack.

The Rams downed the Indians (who were missing two key players), 65-61. South San Francisco remained in a tie for the lead at 2-0 by dropping Serramonte, 73-51. In other games Oceana beat El Camino 63-54 and Terra Nova downed Half Moon Bay, 56-43.

Jefferson was without starting guard Eric Haynes and sixth man Mike Osborne, who were out for disciplinary reasons.

Both teams got off to slow starts. Jefferson came within two, 14-12, in the second quarter and, on the shooting of Jose Guaman, came within five twice in the third period.

But two buckets by junior forward Jerry McNeil gave Westmoor a 46-36 lead and a layin by guard Ted Scott at the third quarter buzzer put the Rams up 48-36. Westmoor then moved out to a 16-point lead and ran a stall offense.

Ram center Maruice Pittman was in foul trouble and spent 2½ quarters on the bench. But soph forward Chris Tyeskey joined McNeil to put plenty of punch in the front line. Tyeskey scored 18 and McNeil 17.

Guaman led Jeff with 20 and center Ron Sylvia got 17.

Serramonte started out in a zone defense against South San Francisco. But SSF's Albert Dunn, who'd scored 30 points in his previous game, brought the Regents out of the zone with a few well-sighted bombs, and ended up with 25 points.

The Warriors beat Serramonte back on the fast break often enough to do severe damage.

El Camino led Oceana by nine in the third quarter, 45-36, but the Sharks threw up and effective halfcourt zone press and Camino couldn't handle it.

Oceana's Javier Grandov hit 11 of his first 13 attempts from the floor. He scored 23 of his 27 points in the first half, when the Sharks needed him the most. Roger Suhrke led Camino scorers with 17.

Half Moon Bay led Terra Nova 32-28 in the third quarter, but the Tigers then ran off 13 straight points to take the lead for good.

The key to Terra Nova's run was Mike Walley, who scored 21. But Walley did more than score.

Dan Phelps, the Tigers' 6-4 center, was still hobbled by an injury and didn't play long. The 6-2 Walley, who played center last year before Phelps transferred from McAteer, helped out by pulling down a mere 31 rebounds.

Pads Rally, Win

John Caselli led a fourth quarter rally Friday night that gave Serra High's basketball team a 50-40 win over visiting Bellarmine of San Jose.

The Padres are 4-0 in the West Catholic Athletic League. Bellarmine is 0-3.

Serra, which shot only 26 per cent from the floor for the game, trailed 29-25 going into the last period.

But, sparked by Caselli, the Padres outscored the Bells 25-11 in the fourth quarter and won going away.

Caselli had 13 points and four steals in the period, much of that coming in a 15-2 Serra burst from 6:49 to 3:11 left.

Caselli and fellow frontliners Mike O'Regan and Joe Ned grabbed crucial rebounds after the physical Bells had dominated the boards in the third quarter.

Serra held a 19-17 halftime lead before Bellarmine muscled its way into the lead.

Caselli had 20 points, Ned 13 and Joe Moureaux ten for the Padres, who have won nine straight games.

Leaders Win Big

South San Francisco High upped its NPL-leading wrestling record to 2-0 with a convincing 48-20 win over visiting Serramonte Friday.

The Warriors are 4-0 going into Tuesday's bout with Terra Nova.

In MPL matches Friday, San Mateo annihilated Aragon 67-4, Hillsdale stomped Burlingame 55-6 and Crestmoor bombarded Capuchino 60-3. The three winners are unbeaten.

South City was paced by the efforts of Dan Dacanay, who pinned his opponent in 112's and by Cameron Dodge, who rallied from a 6-0 deficit to gain a 6-6 draw.

San Mateo didn't even need to show up for a win as the Bearcats received seven forfeits, worth 42 tallies. Aragon's only points came on a majority decision over a fill-in. Todd Weinfield was most impressive with his second varsity win for SM since being moved up from the frosh-soph.

Hillsdale picked up six forfeits. Matt Martinelli and Burlingame's Don Vilotti locked horns in the day's best match. Vilotti led 7-6 going into the final period, but Martinelli turned him over and pinned him with 34 seconds left in the match.

Crestmoor kept pace with San Mateo with its win. The Falcons had five pins; the quickest was Ken Elliot's in 95's, just 39 seconds. Cap's only win was by Tim Nestoryak, who upset Tony Badal 9-8 in 154's.

Daly City Runners in Palace Indoor Games

By FRED BAER
Post Correspondent

Serramonte High, College of San Mateo and the Millbrae Lions Track Club all impressed during Saturday's trials for the Jan. 24 San Francisco Indoor Games at the Cow Palace.

The County will have one of its biggest contingents in the 12-year history of the meet at Daly City.

Serramonte hurdlers Ron Kennedy and Tony Hicks won their semi-finals (both in 7.2) to lead six qualifiers in the 60 HH. The Regents also took their mile relay heat in 3:27.8 with a team of Hicks, Dan Martinelli, Ken Terrell and Kennedy. And they were second in their sprint medley relay heat to trials leader Highlands of Sacramento (3:34.5) with a 3:36.6 quartet of Kennedy, Alvin Diles, Terrell and Jim Martinelli.

San Mateo High led the mile relay qualifiers, however, with a 3:27.4 clocking by Gary Davis, Kevin Groves, Andy Gustavson and Bob Foulke.

Mills was one of five teams seeded into a special added two-mile relay for the Cow Palace.

Roy Kissen of San Ramon edged Mitch Kingery of San Carlos in the two mile, 9:13.6 to 9:15.0 with Bill Laforge of Oceana, fourth in 9:19.2, and Rob Barnett of Hillsdale, 12th in 9:27.6, also qualifying.

CSM and San Jose CC both won their mile relay sections with 3:22.6 clockings. The Bulldogs surprised with a quartet of Bruce Veal (50.3), Jerry Lilly (51.9) Marlon Murphy (50.8) and Chris Penny (49.6). Skyline was seventh overall in 3:31.2 as only four teams qualified. Skyline was fifth in the sprint medley relay in 3:34.0, missing a berth by three-tenths of a second, while CSM ran 3:37.5.

Skyline's Ike Allmont won his exhibition 60 high hurdles section in 7.6 and could gain an invitational spot in the meet alongside ex-Trojan star Bart Pierce, now at Oregon State.

The Millbrae Lions qualified three girls in the 60-yard dash, with Lion Elaine Parker (7.0) second to Freida Cobb's 6.9 Pacific Association record for the Berkeley Track Club.

Olympic pentathlete Marilyn King qualified in the high jump at 4-11¾ for Millbrae. And the Lions' 880 medley relay team ran second in 1:48.1 with a quartet of Denise Pemberton, Karen Elmore, Yoland Allen and Elaine Parker.

1975 All-America Vegetables Announced

By IVA NEWMAN

New colors among flowers are common, but new colors in vegetables are extremely rare, and a most unusual All-America winner for 1975 is a yellow-fleshed hybrid watermelon called Yellow Baby from China. It's a cross between an American female parent (New Hampshire Midget) and a Chinese male parent.

With the introduction of this yellow-fleshed watermelon, people might wonder why breeders develop new colors in vegetables, what benefits they have and is there any demand for these colorful oddities?

Strangely enough, some of the most popular vegetables are vegetables of a different color. Ruby lettuce, which has reddish leaves instead of green, and Royalty bush bean, which is purple podded instead of green, are two examples of vegetables with unconventional colors which are extremely popular. Also popular are purple heading cauliflower, golden beets, white radish, blue potatoes, red chard and yellow tomatoes.

Sixty years ago there was a fierce prejudice against yellow corn. People believed that white corn was for humans and yellow corn was for cattle. Then along came a yellow corn that changed people's prejudice. Its name was Golden Bantam, the sweetest corn of its time and still one of the top selling corns today, 60 years later

Yellow Watermelon

So, now we have the new yellow watermelon, Yellow Baby, an All-America winner. There's more reason to grow Yellow Baby than its new color, as the All-America judges discovered when they grew it in their test gardens. The crisp, bright pineapple-yellow flesh is delicious and it is sweeter than other "ice-box" varieties. It is more productive and just as early to ripen (ready for eating within 70-75 days of sowing seed). Also, it has fewer seeds and more edible flesh than the red varieties of "ice-box" melons.

In appearance Yellow Baby resembles New Hampshire Midget, a popular red-fleshed variety of the "ice-box" type. Yellow Baby grows slightly larger fruit (up to 7 inches in diameter), almost perfectly round, and slightly heavier (up to 10 pounds in weight). The outer skin is light green, marked with dark green stripes. The rind is thin (⅛ inch) and the skin is hard. It also holds up longer than other "ice-box") types.

Especially recommended for growing in home gardens, seed should be sown directly in the ground after all danger of frost, in groups spaced six feet apart. The vines grow rapidly and fruit setting is early. A light fertile soil enriched with compost, in an open, sunny location, is best for watermelons.

Yellow Baby won award points in 25 official trial gardens from Florida to Canada.

Cauliflower Snow Crown is a vigorous growing hybrid, making well-rounded, pure white solid heads weighing up to two pounds each of Snowball type, but a week earlier. The eating quality of the curd is exceptionally good served cooked or raw, canned or frozen. Individual heads measure up to eight inches across, have good depth, stay tight longer after picking. Snow Queen Crown is more vigorous, more uniform and easier to grow then standard Snowball varieties, and one head will generally provide a generous serving for a family of four.

The best planting times for cauliflower are early spring for early summer harvest and early fall for winter harvest. Maria Burnett, 1586 Lodi St., San Mateo, has one of the most productive vegetable gardens that we are acquainted with. She is tying up the leaves on plants that she started from seed last September 15. In the stores, cauliflower is one of the cost- liest vegetables to buy, so growing your own makes good sense, especially hybrids like Snow Crown, which are more dependable and earlier. Cool weather is the secret of good results with cauliflower. The curds (heads) are made up of extremely tight flower bud clusters, and when hot weather sets in they just go to seed, failing to develop a usable head.

Although cauliflower seed can be sown directly into the garden, better results are assured by starting seed early indoors and transplanting the young plants into their permanent location, spaced 18 to 24 inches apart in well fertilized soil. Sown directly into the garden, seeds should be planted in groups of three or four ½ inch deep, thinning the group to one sturdy plant.

Broccoli

Broccoli Premium Crop was tested against other leading broccoli varieties in the second early class. Premium Crop grew larger heads with tighter, more compact bud clusters, creating a more solid head. Plants are uniform in habit and maturity, producing terminal heads ready for harvest in 58 days from the time plants were set out. Heads are carried well above the leaves with no side shoots. Color is a pale blue-green.

Hybrids among the cabbage family (cauliflower, brussels sprouts and broccoli) are not common because seed production per plant is small and too costly to support hand pollination. However, a small number of breeders have developed special techniques for the production of these hybrids at reasonable cost, to provide several benefits over standard variations: 1—good uniformity; 2—vigorous growth ensuring earliness and disease resistance; 3—higher yields — meaning larger more reliable heads per plant.

Over most of the United States, broccoli can be grown as a spring or fall crop, since broccoli needs a cool growing season to produce best results.

Broccoli is a good vegetable for home gardens.

Bruno Probes Cable TV

A special meeting has been set for 8 p.m. Jan. 22 at San Bruno City Hall to discuss the future of that city's Cable Television system.

City Manager Gerald Minford Monday night submitted a lengthy report in which he says the city "should seriously consider a joint venture with private enterprise" to capitalize, manage and develop an extensive array of cable services.

"It would be a complex path to take, requiring extensive study of very intricate financial arrangements," stated Minford's recommendation.

"The end results must be the providing of new CATV services, and assurance that the city would share in the growth and profits to be made from the joint venture."

Councilman John Barnard immediately voiced opposition to any cable system expansion considerations at this time. He said, "We haven't completed the system yet, we haven't paid back the borrowed money (from the city's water department) and we shouldn't be thinking of expansion until these are done."

Minford said some policy decision must be made as to which direction the city would take, and also how far and how fast that move would be.

"Long-range financial planning has been the desire of the council in the past," said Minford. Mayor Tony Governale, who has consistently sought such a study session, concurred and set the meeting date.

The city-owned system has approximately 7,000 subscribers, which according to Minford's report, represents a 50 per cent "penetration" of the city and brings in an estimated annual net profit of $75,000.

By projecting estimated operating costs and revenues, he said it was anticipated that the $542,000 advanced for the first phases of construction would be repaid in 1982.

"This represents seven years before there will be monies available for any significant capital outlays. If the City Council wishes to vary from the original plan to accelerate the "adding of new services, a new financial plan will have to be developed," stated Minford's report.

Minford also recommended that the city continue its repayment schedule according to the original concept, making sure the profit picture is either improved or kept intact, and that any investments do not jeopardize the city's financial position.

Goals still will be to offer a high quality signal, provide opportunity for coverage of local meetings and sports events, import other signals as an added service, investigate the future potential for fire and police alarms, meter reading etc., and to meet all FCC regulations.

Pacifica Meet On Cable Set

Pacifica's City Council Monday night set a showdown meeting on local cable television reception after a petition threatened to withhold taxes.

The meeting was set for March 5, with representatives of the Pacifica Cable Co. to be invited.

The firm already has been put on notice that its franchise would be revoked if it failed to perform to standards.

City Manager Don Weidner told the council that a study now being made of the firm's signal strength, indicating whether the operation is meeting federal standards, should be completed by March 5.

Marvin Schneider, 1050 Park Pacifica Ave., presented the petition from the Park Pacifica area

He complained that his neighborhood is in a shadow area and unable to receive channels 2, 4, 5, 7 and 9. The petition demanded that the city build television antennae in all such "TV-blighted areas" so that all citizens would enjoy the same rights — and that the city's franchise with Pacifica Cable Co. be cancelled.

Since the city allowed homes to be built in "TV-blighted areas," the petition demands that unless the city moves to provide good reception, it provide a tax rebate. Otherwise, Schneider declared, Park Pacificans will withhold money from the next tax installment.

"Some of us are pretty upset," he added. "Cable television has been unresponsive to any of our complaints."

More Money Sought for Head Start Program

Edward R. Becks, executive director of the county's Economic Opportunity Commission, Thursday night was directed to explore "all avenues available" to raise additional funds for the county's Head Start program after the commission agreed that the program's present budget of $154,000 is "almost ridiculous."

Commissioner Dolores Randell pointed out that the program for pre-school-age children conducted at six centers throughout the county has had the same budget for the past three years, leaving the program without funds to do the things it ought to do.

In addition, Commissioner William H. Tupper, a representative of the county's Central Labor Council, asserted, "There is a problem when people are working for wages less than adequate. But money is not available."

A "Child Advocacy Committee," headed by Commissioner Maria Luna, submitted a report that the existing budget "is obsolete because of rising costs of inflation. Such budgets include no cost of living increases for staff."

The committee was formed as a "grievance committee" to make recommendations as a result of complaints received from parents.

Because of the financial press, the committee recommended that a coordinator for programs throughout the county be eliminated so her salary can be used to purchase equipment and supplies.

Commissioner Esther Talavera said San Francisco has lost its Head Start program because of lack of parent participation.

Although a member of the audience criticized the committee of making recommendations only from staff members, Mrs. Luna promised the committee's recommendations will be sent to parents' councils and directors at each center.

One of the grievances expressed by parents, according to Mrs. Helen S. Kerwin, commission chairman, is cuts in the number of days the programs operate and the cuts in the number of staff members.

Tupper, a committee member, promised the committee will do two things: visit each site and meet with parents.

The committee made the following recommendations:

- That the E.O.C. conduct a survey of all programs for children in the county.
- That it conduct a census of Head Start eligible children and their location in the county.
- That a schedule be developed for a public forum on early childhood needs.
- That an "information bank" be developed "to solve identified needs and seek out new resources."
- That the Head Start administrative staff, along with the E.O.C., be responsible for proposed program activity.
- That a "task force" be developed by combing staffs to develop a schedule of activity by the middle of January.

Becks was instructed to collect all data available to develop "an advocacy program" to show supervisors the need for additional funds.

Mrs. Kathy Haney, newly appointed director of the county's senior nutrition program, reported she will be asking a 33 per cent increase in its budget, or $65,000, to open a center in South San Francisco to serve 100 meals a day to the elderly and to provide transportation for them to the center. In addition, she requested that "an in-house director" be appointed at a Ravenswood Center in East Palo Alto.

Daniel Bravo, a staff member, reported that while aid is being given to the needy in the Pacifica area, the southern Coastside is still one of the most neglected in the county.

He said while the Rancho Ano Nuevo provides "beautiful homes" for migrant workers, there are not sufficient facilities, because even if they wanted to ranchers are prohibited from building additional residences along the Coastside by the Regional Coastside Commission.

Bravo said he had witnessed deplorable conditions "on some ranches in response to a question from Commissioner James L. Frear of San Mateo.

Mrs. Kerwin said the commission has developed a staff to look into housing for farm workers on the Coastside, and commented, "I am very pleased we have finally been able to start a program over there, which has been so long neglected."

Among the major problems faced by migrant workers, Bravo reported, are inadequate housing, transportation and child care facilities.

"When you make only $2 an hour," he reported, "both the husband and wife must work to survive. Who is going to take care of the children?"

Federal Funds Only Will Pay for 25 County Jobs

San Mateo County will be able to fill only 25 positions from the $1,678,000 in Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds it was notified last Friday it will receive for this year.

County Manager M.D. Tarshes and Charles Moody, manpower programs coordinator for the county, informed the Board of Supervisors Tuesday that there is no way the county could create and fill 180 jobs which would be funded by the money.

They noted that the government is requiring as a condition of receiving the funding for the new public service employment program, the jobs must be created by this coming Friday.

The board subsequently accepted a recommendation of Tarshes and Moody that the county fund 25 jobs and that the balance of the funding be subgranted to selected cities, school districts and private non-profit corporations who are willing and able to participate.

The California State Employment Development Department will assist the county in recruitment, selection and referral procedures for participants in the program.

Supervisor Edward J. Bacciocco said providing 25 jobs "makes me uncomfortable, it's not good planning to add 25 jobs, whether or not they are needed."

He wanted it understood, the new supervisor stated, that those taking the jobs understand they are temporary and they are not being taken into the county government.

Supervisor William H. Royer said, on the other hand, that perhaps those hired on the program can eventually fill jobs which will be needed anyway and which would have to be funded by the county.

"This would be a way of financing," he commented.

Tarshes said that if some of those hired under the temporary funding prove efficient they perhaps could be considered for fulltime positions as vacancies occur in other jobs through resignations or retirement.

He was not prepared to name any positions which might be created for the program, the county manager5 stated.

Dist. Atty. Keith C. Sorenson said he was prepared to do so. Sorenson noted that there is such a backlog of work in the family support and reciprocal services divisions of his office that he planned to ask the board next week for mid-year new positions.

Perhaps, he stated, such positions as typist-clerk could be filled temporarily under the new federal program.

Supervisor John M. Ward, expressing concerning over the rapidity with which the government is demanding creation and filling of the jobs, said the legistlators should develop more responsibility in such matters.

"The minds in government could foresee this problem," Ward said.

At his request, the board authorized a letter to the state's Legislators in Congress urging that in the future the federal government give a more realistic time schedule to prepare for such programs.
